CAPTRUST CIO Kevin Barry on Bloomberg Radio

He once again joined Bloomberg Radio hosts Carol Massar and Jason Kelly to share updates about life in Raleigh during the pandemic, government spending, and the effects of rising trade tensions with China.

CAPTRUST CIO Kevin Barry once again joined Bloomberg Radio hosts Carol Massar and Jason Kelly to share updates about life in Raleigh during the pandemic, government spending, and the effects of rising trade tensions with China.

“We have the bipartisan support for tremendous spending on the fiscal side, tremendous support on the monetary policy side. I’m not sure we would have gotten that much support if it wasn’t an election year,” said Barry.

The reason?

“Who wants to go to the ballot box and say they are voting against loans for small business, I’m voting against our unemployment benefits [...] There doesn’t seem to be anyone advocating much in the way of fiscal discipline.”

When it comes to environmental, social, and governance (ESG) investing: “More than half of our employees are millennials, and for a firm to grow [...] you have to attract talent. And you’re getting grilled by the talent on your internal ESG policies, even before you design products for clients,” said Barry.
