

Episode 3: Board Development With YWCA of Greater Charleston

Heather Shanahan, CAPTRUST director of endowments and foundations, talks with LaVanda Brown and Courtney Johnson from the YWCA of Greater Charleston (YWCAGC). LaVanda has been the organization's executive director for seven years, and Courtney is the current treasurer and incoming chair of the YWCAGC's board.

In the episode, LaVanda and Courtney share their experiences navigating and supporting the YWCA's mission of eliminating racism and empowering women. The three discuss the intentional decision to have an all-female board; the steps they've taken to honor the organization's mission; the importance of staff and board member relationships; and strategic planning.

Subscribe to Mission + Markets for more insight for nonprofits and mission-focused organizations.

Under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, this podcast is defined as an advertisement and includes an uncompensated testimonial by a CAPTRUST client. Please be advised that clients' experiences as described in the podcast do not necessarily represent the experience of other clients.

RESOURCES:

YWCA GREATER CHARLESTON

Racial Equity Institute

BoardSource

Measuring Diversity in Nonprofits